Data driven Organization

- Definition.

“A data driven organisation is an organisation that is highly committed to gathering data, and on all levels are using data when needed as a basis for decision-making, as well as a possibility for business value.”

Why become a Data driven organization?

Growth. Increased Profit.
Competitive Advantage.
Acquire more Customers.
Business opportunities.
Process Effectiveness.
Customer satisfaction.

Why are not more
Organizations being truly
Data driven?

What to do?

An aerial photograph of a herd of cows in a lush green field. The cows are clustered in the center-right of the frame, with some scattered further out. The field is vibrant green with small yellow flowers scattered throughout. The text 'Scope People Operational Technology' is overlaid in white, with the 'O' in 'Operational' being significantly larger than the other letters.

Operation.

Strategy	Centralized	Top-Down	Data Cheerleaders	Connected
What	Form generalized practices from collected suggestions	Let management show that data driven is the thing	Show value to one domain/group	Get together and double the value
How	Form one group that creates all the generalised practices eg. one basis solution for image recognition. Then get insight and ideas for use cases through form channels and inboxes for ideas	Be advisory and secure data as a source in all important decisions. Show what matters.	Solve their problems and pains, let them spread the value	Create a multidisciplinary team to solve cross-functional and/or advanced problems eg. form a team from production to sales to get more perspectives and use more data
